

ABSTRACT

An apparatus for at least one of installing and removing a pre-selected item in difficult to reach places such apparatus comprises a rod having a predetermined length, and predetermined size, a positioning means having a predetermined end configuration, a predetermined size, and predetermined shape engageable with such rod for positioning such pre-selected item. It also includes a connecting means engageable with each of the positioning means and the rod for connecting the positioning means to the rod.

10